8. How to save an article in a subscribed database?

Open an article, click Save. Save As window will appear. On the left of this window, click Computer and choose your computer disk. For example, if your computer name is Naminukas, your disk most probably will be called C on Naminukas or D on Naminukas.

9. How to print an article from a subscribed database?

You cannot print an article directly from the library database. You have to save it first (as explained in paragraph 8), then open it on your computer and print.
